How it Works

-The recipient and angel come up with a mutually agreed upon set of tasks to accomplish.

-Regular visits are set up throughout the growing season. Together they plan, plant, care for and harvest vegetables and flowers from a small garden on the recipient's property.

-UMaine Extension will provide gardening information to the participants and act as a resource for any gardening questions they may have.

-Garden Angels cannot recommend or apply any kind of pesticides (including herbicides or insecticides)

What is the Garden Angel Project?

The Garden Angel Project is a program of the University of Maine Cooperative Extension. The goal of the Garden Angel program is to match Master Gardener Volunteers with others who also love to garden but are no longer physically able to without help. Garden Angels assist with planting and caring for small vegetable or flower gardens.

There is no cost to participate in this program; however, recipients should understand that it is the intention of this program to assist those individuals who could not otherwise afford to pay for gardening help.
